This charming historic country house, still featuring part of its 100 year old mill and olive press is situated on a plot of 30 hectares in the valley of Llano de la Cruz, very few kilometres from the historic town of Ronda. The hacienda lies nestled in a wide open valley of gently sloping countryside, surrounded by vineyards, olive groves and wheat fields and enjoys complete privacy and tranquillity. Furthermore, the property is bordered by 2 streams with a third running through, giving an abundance of water. The main house, with its metre-thick whitewashed walls, is built around a cobbled courtyard in the traditional Andalusian style and oozes authenticity and charm at every turn. The traditional terracotta floors, the wooden ceiling beams, the portals and iron work as well as the paved courtyard all add to an impression of going back in time. As you enter through antique doors to the ancient cobbled courtyard you are immediately met by the beautiful wooden doors to the chapel and next to it the stairs that lead to the first floor where you find the main entrance of the house. The house on two levels comprises 8 bedrooms, 6 bathrooms, 5 fireplaces, a library/study, a sitting room/office, a huge salon/dining room and...
