A historic country estate with 2,000 hectares of big game licensed hunting. The finca was given to General Ricardo Rada in 1956 for his services to Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator during the Civil War. Situated in Granada province in the area of Caniles and Baza. Scattered throughout the hunting lodge are photos and references to Francisco Franco, also an enormous array of big game trophies adorn every wall each has a plaque stating when and who made the kill. It's like stepping back in time. The property has an entrance hall with a staircase, leading from the entrance hall to the left is the lounge which looks out over the garden and beyond there are magnificent views of the rolling hills and open countryside. To the right of the hallway is a smaller reception room with a Christian shrine to the Virgin Mary. On the ground floor there are three bedrooms and two bathrooms + the servants quarters which has three bedrooms. Upstairs there are four bedrooms and two bathrooms, every room has a fireplace or small wood burning stove. This finca is outstanding not only in size but in its sheer beauty and the enormous red deer population gambolling across the land. There is a licence for...
